Pitman's system is the synthesis of about 200 years of shorthand experimentation, mainly in England. Shorthand has almost died out, but perhaps it will find some other role in the 21st century. If you are going to try to learn it, just do a little bit every day - it can't be conquered overnight and it can't be memorized.

In Pitman, you write the consonant sounds first to form a shorthand "outline" and then, if necessary, mark in the vowels. In many instances, no vowel marks are necessary. Vowels should, however, be marked in full the first time a proper name is mentioned (or if the name has an unfamiliar spelling, it should be spelled out in regular letters).

Pitman is a by-the-rule system: apropos the Teach Yourself series, the idea is, you show the student once how to do something, and the rule is universally applied. To use an analogy, you only have to show a person once how to use a screwdriver. Not a lot of word examples are necessary to teach a person a particular Pitman rule.
